Election sign vandalism rampant

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Many of Minden Hills's council candidates say they have experienced vandalism and theft of their election signs since the campaign signs were permitted to go up in September.

It is illegal to tamper with election signs and the act can result in fines, probation or even jail time.

Ward 1 councillor candidate Abby Xerri said he'd had a number of his signs stolen shortly after he put them up throughout the ward.

"Unfortunately, I had half of my signs go missing within 24 hours of putting them up," Xerri told the Times, adding that others had been defaced with profane and derogatory comments. "A couple had some

Third party called in to Dorset firehall

Chad Ingram

Algonquin Highlands township is bringing in a third party to deal with the conflict within the Dorset fire department.

As reported in the Times last week, many of the department's members have quit in a dispute that seems to involve the township's fire training officer and the issue was discussed at an in-camera meeting of council on Oct. 14. where councillors determined the township's next steps.

"In consultation with the Office of the Fire Marshal, council will seek the services of an independent professional from the fire service to

Please call the Minden Hills Cultural Centre, 286-3763 or ask any board member for more information.

New policies involving criminal records checks now in place

For many years, OPP detachments have processed requests for criminal records checks that are used for employment and volunteer positions. In addition, some citizens require a vulnerable sector check when they work or volunteer in a position that involves being in direct contact with children or vulnerable persons.

The vulnerable sector screening is an agency-driven request, so a form provided by the OPP must be completed by the agency requiring the criminal record check.

In the past, these checks would take approximately one week to complete and the results were returned to the applicant.

Recently, changes have been implemented making this process much longer. For some, the changes may require the applicant submits fingerprints to be sent to the RCMP making the entire process take about four months.

People who work or volunteer in the community are asked to keep this in mind as they plan their community involvement and participation accordingly.

Places for People climbing ranks of Pepsi challenge

Places for People is moving up the ranks of the Pepsi Refresh Project, a contest to see who can get the most votes online for $100,000.

As of Monday, the affordable housing group that refurbished a low-rent home in Haliburton, is in 14th place, up from 21st just weeks before.

Voting ends Oct. 31. Go to www.refresheverything.ca/placesforpeople to vote. Each person can vote once per day until the end of the contest.

The Township of Minden Hills
In Season, Every Season

There's something good in every one of these cans.

Every aluminum and steel can that gets recycled is put to good use. Empty aluminum beverage cans are turned into brand new cans - often back on store shelves within 60 days. Steel cans are turned back into food containers, too, but they can also become parts of automobiles, bridges or even new houses.

Aluminum and steel cans can be recycled over and over, infinitely.

Making new products from recycled material uses much less energy than making them from raw materials. And the more cans you recycle, the more money your municipality raises to finance its recycling program.

We're half way there.

Right now, about 50% of all cans in Ontario get recycled. The ones that don't are wasted, ending in landfill sites rather than being put to valuable use. Let's all put more into our Blue Box, and get more out of it.

Can we put more aluminum and steel cans into the Blue Box? Can we divert needless waste from landfill sites? Can we save more energy? Can we put every empty can to good use?

The answer is simple. Yes, we can.

Space provided through partnership between industry and Ontario municipalities to support waste diversion programs.

New ballots to be mailed out to AH residents

On Oct. 26, Algonquin Highlands township will issue new ballots, of a different colour from the original ballots, to eligible voters in Ward 2.

The new ballots are to correct earlier ballots that contained an error, asking voters to choose one of three council candidates, even though the ward has two council seats.

The ballots pertain only to the election of councillors for the ward.

The new ballots must be mailed by Nov. 20 and the count will take place on Nov. 29 at 8 p.m.

For more information, contact the township office at 489-2379.

Bears, wolves and deer explained by experts

Seminar helps residents understand behaviour of wild animals who live among us

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Living in Haliburton County means sharing the area with a number of creatures, including predators such as bears and wolves.

Learning how to coexist with these animals was the subject of a seminar hosted by the Haliburton Highlands Stewardship Council at the Kinark Outdoor Centre on Oct. 15.

"The bears can't help themselves," said MNR research scientist Martyn Obbard, explaining that bears looking for food are under "tremendous evolutionary pressure" to follow their stomachs.

Bears have a great variability in the types of food they consume and have memories that allow them to gravitate back to the same food source year after year.

"If that food source happens to be improperly stored garbage outside your neighbour's cottage," that ability remains the same, Obbard said.

In this area, bears' natural food sources include choke cherries and blueberries and as Obbard explained, it is common for these berries to be more plentiful, then less plentiful, in alternating seasons.

"In even-numbered years, food sources in this area seem to be high," he said, explaining this meant that bear-human incidents were more likely to occur in odd-numbered years.

And stats back Obbard up.

This year, the Minden MNR office saw a large decrease in the number of bear complaint calls it received from last summer, when some bears had to be trapped and some killed in the Halls and Hawk lakes area.

Also, Obbard said, bears generally have cubs every second year since cubs stay with their mothers for approximately 18 months.

As he explained, a huge food shortage in the province caused by dry weather meant a large number of bears that had been pregnant did not give birth in 1996.

Bears have a physiological ability called delayed implantation where, while the eggs of a female bear have been fertilized, they do not attach themselves to the walls of the uterus until around hibernation time.

If, at that time, her fat levels are not sufficient to sustain cubs, her body simply reabsorbs the eggs, terminating the pregnancy.

The many females who did not have cubs in 1996 had them in 1997 and ever since, Obbard said, there have been far more cubs born in odd-numbered years than in even-numbered ones.

To avoid attracting bears to one's property, Obbard said, obeying the MNR's Bear Wise tips such as properly storing garbage and taking down bird feeders can help.

For people who may have small orchards on their properties, Obbard said electrified fencing strung about waist-height (but low enough so bears can't squeeze under) can be an effective impediment.

Fellow research scientist and wolf expert Brent Patterson talked to the crowd about wolves and coyotes, saying that many of the animals people in this area refer to as wolves are actually eastern coyotes or hybrid animals.

Eastern wolves are also present in the area.

As Patterson explained, the eastern wolf, smaller and less pristine-looking than the grey wolf, has acted as a genetic conduit between grey wolves and coyotes.

"It really muddies the water," he said. "If you take the eastern wolf out of the equation, you do not see any hybridization."

Grey wolves can only be found in more northern areas of the province due to substantial hunting in southern Ontario.

"If you try hard enough . . . you can eliminate wolves from the landscape," he said. "We've done it."

He said the fear of wolves much of the population seems to possess is actually irrational, perpetuated largely by centuries of folklore and fairy tales that paint wolves as evil creatures.

Patterson detailed how the size of a pack's territory is directly related to the availability of food and how packs mark their respective territories with scat and scent markers, as well as howling.

Ministry staff commonly find healed bone fractures in wolf carcasses they test, Patterson said, which indicates just how hardy the species is.

"Killing big animals to earn your livelihood is hard," Patterson said.

The ministry is still trying to get an accurate measure of wolf density in the province, something he said is "difficult, expensive and time-consuming."

One thing people can do if they wish to reduce their chances of attracting wolves and coyotes to their properties is to refrain from feeding deer.

"If you're concentrating deer at a feeder, you're in effect concentrating wolves and coyotes," he said. "Unless conditions are extremely dire, you shouldn't be doing it."

This sentiment was echoed by Jan McDonnell, a natural heritage biologist with the MNR's Bracebridge office.

"Deer feeding is a bit of a controversial subject," McDonnell said, reiterating that the practice concentrates an unnatural number of deer in a small area.

Also, she said, it can interfere with the animals' normal metabolism and cause the spread of disease. Deer may begin to demonstrate risky behaviour – such as crossing highways or frozen water bodies they wouldn't normally traverse – to get to their new food sources.

"When you kind of get involved in artificial feeding, things get all messed up," she said.

McDonnell said people needed to start doing a better job of coexisting with other species.

"It's something that I think people aren't really good at yet," she said.

Eleanor Kee Wellman, a professional wildlife photographer, also spoke to the crowd, providing tips for people who wished to practise some wildlife photography in their own backyards.

Council backs off boathouse ban

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Wet slip boathouses will continue to be permitted in wards 1 and 3 of Algonquin Highlands township.

While councillors had been considering a ban on the structures that would incorporate the entire township (wet slip boathouses are already banned in Ward 2, formerly Stanhope), they decided at an Oct. 14 meeting to hold off on expanding the ban.

At the meeting last Thursday, Dorset business owner Chantal Hamilton, who also owns property on Kawagama Lake, told councillors she was upset to hear that council was going to ban the structures. The push for the ban had come largely from the Kawagama Lake Cottagers' Association, which had sent out surveys to its member families.

A number of members also indicated at the association's annual general meeting in the summer that they wished to see wet slip boathouses banned from the lake.

"I knew that people felt the same way I did about it," Hamilton told council, explaining she had sent out a survey of her own to area residents and cottagers.

Hamilton said the response rate to her survey was 56 per cent, that 54 per cent of respondents said they'd not heard of the original survey from the association and that while some 70 per cent of respondents were against the idea of a prohibition, the majority said they had no intention of building a wet-slip boathouse.

Reeve Eleanor Harrison said she had recently received four or five emails from people who agreed with Hamilton.

However, Harrison noted that Dysart et al had banned wet slip boathouses on the part of Kawagama Lake it controls and she thought it behooved the townships to be consistent with regulations in areas of shared jurisdiction.

Harrison also admitted that she personally is not a fan of wet slip boathouses and noted they can cause problems with views.

Ward 3 Councillor Diane Griffin said she was uncomfortable with expanding the ban into wards 1 and 3.

"I don't like it," Griffin said. "Why are we being so restrictive?"

Griffin said that the association represented about 500 families on the lake, which has nearly 1,000 cottage properties. Noting that the association had received an approximate 45-per-cent response rate to its survey (which indicated that 83 per cent of respondents were in favour of the ban), she didn't feel that was sufficient to proceed with prohibiting the structures.

Councillor Carol Moffatt said in her eyes, the two opposing surveys left council with the status quo.

"To me, one crosses the other out and we're back to where we were," Moffatt said.

An extension of the ban had been discussed as part of the township's official plan review, which should be completed shortly.

All amendments must be approved by county council.

Runway needs better advocacy, consultant tells council

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Last week, Algonquin Highlands councillors received a letter criticizing what the writer said was their failure get out the true facts around the Stanhope Airport expansion project.

Council received the letter from Toronto consultant Keith Beard, who was involved in the 2007 project visioning process, at its Oct. 14 meeting.

"What bothers me the most is that unfounded and fabricated remarks made by the anti-airport group do not get challenged and arguments are left to dangle suggesting their points have sufficient merit to cancel a great opportunity," Beard's letter, dated Sept. 22, read.

"The local press seems to rely solely on a readily available outspoken individual for its content with no attempt to find balance in its reports. As a result, I think council is facilitating a great injustice onto its voters by ignoring the constant negative message with no rebuttal to set the record straight."

In his letter, Beard says that "after thousands and thousands of hours of analysis over years of study by experts, in who knows how many fields, we have arrived at a point where their collective recommendation to proceed with the airport isn't being heard or understood."

He points to airport expansions in Lindsay, Peterborough, Brantford and Muskoka as proof that Algonquin Highlands should be proceeding with the expansion project to keep the township and the county competitive in the economy.

"There are few investments a local council can initiate that can generate the community-based benefits that become available with the Stanhope Airport expansion," the letter reads. "Council has yet to challenge the naysayers to come up with Plan B. Opponents have no Plan B, they have no plans as in nada nothing zero."

The letter also suggests that council members must have the courage to go home and tell their families, "today I had the opportunity to vote for high-tech jobs coming to our community and I voted against jobs. You will have to find work elsewhere."

Councillor Carol Moffatt, who is the one member of council who's voted against the expansion project, said she didn't believe the airport issue had anything to do with denying expertise and thought Beard's letter contained "trite and insulting language."

"I said all of this," said Reeve Eleanor Harrison, explaining she'd always said the expansion project would allow for an industrial park at the airport, which would create jobs. "We've tried to get, as far as I'm concerned, our side of the story out."

Deputy-reeve Tom Gardner said the letter was well written.

"I can understand his point of view," Gardner said, having read "long-winded diatribes not based on fact in the newspaper."

Don Shortreed said the reason there had been so much attention on the comments from those against the airport expansion is that those in favour had simply not spoken up in the same manner.

The expansion project, which would build an additional 1,220-metre runway at the airport, has been on hold as the township waits to hear back from the Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency, which is completing a review of public input on the project.

New mail system results in delivery disturbances

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

A new standardized mailing system implemented in Haliburton County at the end of August has created confusion and prolonged delivery for some residents of Algonquin Highlands and Minden Hills.

According to Martine Lepine, a spokesperson for Canada Post, the new system affected 4,500 residents in the county, specifically those living in the township of Algonquin Highlands with a rural route designator.

Those living in the municipality of Algonquin Highlands with an RR #1 designation now have the postal code K0M 1J1 while those with an RR#2 address have a K0M 1J2 postal code.

Prior to the changes Ron and Toos Reid had a Minden Hills mailing address, now the couple, who live west of Carnarvon on Kushog Lake Road, are receiving mail with an Algonquin Highlands address.

"I wasn't aware of the change," said Ron Reid. "I'm not sure why our address says Algonquin Highlands when we live and vote in Minden Hills."

According to Minden Hills Councillor Bill Obee, the address changes do not affect which municipality residents vote in.

The change, said Obee, has been spearheaded entirely by Canada Post and has nothing to do with the municipality.

"The ward in which they live in and are voting in stay the same," said Obee.

"Not everybody in the Carnarvon area is affected, it depends on where you are. I live just south of Carnarvon and my address did not change."

Minden Hills postmaster Kim Wood said the changes have affected those living in the municipality of Algonquin Highlands the most.

"Pretty much the rule of thumb is if you're in the township of Algonquin Highlands then your address has changed," said Wood. "However the line kind of zigzags and there is the odd exception."

Those living in the southern region of Minden Hills were also affected by the changes as the new postal code for those with an RR#5 or RR#6 designation is K0M 2L1.

A resident of Moore Falls, Debbie Comer has been having issues with the delivery of her mail since the end of the summer.

"We had warning beforehand that there would be changes," said Comer. "First we got a notice that said they were going to drop the rural route number. Then because we lived in Moore Falls our address, which was saying Norland, was changed to Minden.

"It seems very disorganized."

"It's been an adjustment," said Wood. "We're trying to accommodate everyone and get everything delivered on a timely basis."

Algonquin Highlands resident Paul MacInnes says while the changes haven't affected the delivery of his mail they have affected others.

"The change itself poses a lot of problems because a lot of the companies I do business with, their databases won't accept Algonquin Highlands or the postal code as a valid address," said MacInnes. "And Algonquin Highlands is too long to fit into a lot of the data fields and mailing labels."

Algonquin Highlands councillor and future reeve Carol Moffatt said the changes have caused a lot of angst and trouble for residents of the township.

"There has been much confusion and the Canada Post folks seem to have had some difficulty in getting it right," said Moffatt. "I know the information I received for my own address is K0M 1J1. Some people are being told they are K0M 1J2. I don't understand what the difference is.

"While I haven't had any issues I know there have been problems and have been some transitional pains."

All customers were notified by the end of August regarding the changes, said Lepine, however mail items with the old address on them will continue to be delivered for a period of one year after implementation.

According to Canada Post, mail delivery times should not be affected during implementation as delivery personnel are recognizing both the new and old address.

Diana Adamowicz, a Canada Post delivery planner for the region of Haliburton County, initially brought the standardized system to the county's attention a year ago.

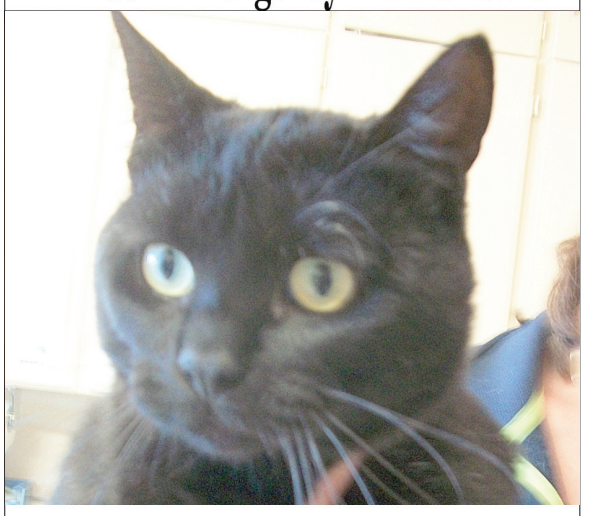

"We decided to switch to 911 addressing because of the growth and changes," said Adamowicz. "For the security of the mail and everything else we're trying to implement standard addressing right across the country."

According to Lepine the changes will also assist Canada Post agents in getting the mail to residents both quickly and correctly.

"Having the mailing address match the municipal address leads to more efficient and effective mail processing," said Lepine.

"If you've had the same delivery agent for the past 20 years he or she knows where you are. But if we have a relief delivery employee who doesn't really know you it's much more efficient this way."

Don't feed the deer

WINTER IS A DIFFICULT SEASON for animals of all types.

Being herbivores, deer see a drastic decrease in the abundance of their food sources and heavy snowfalls can make travelling difficult.

So it's no wonder some folks feel the urge to help them out during the snowy months by feeding them.

Chad Ingram
Reporter

Deer feeding for some is a popular winter hobby and there's no doubt that watching the graceful creatures move around a yard is a sight to behold.

However, dear readers, if any of you are habitual deer feeders, please, stop.

At a seminar on coexisting with our furry friends at the Kinark Outdoor Centre last week, some MNR scientists spoke about the dangers feeding deer pose to . . . deer.

That's right.

While you may think you're doing them a favour by offering them an easy and reliable meal during a sparse time, really your actions are quite likely harming the very creatures you're trying to help.

The reasons are multiple.

One is that unnaturally concentrating deer in an area on a regular basis makes them easy targets for predators like coyotes.

Group feeding also increases the spread of disease among the animals and can change their metabolic activity.

At least this is what I've been told and, as a general rule of thumb, it seems it is usually a good idea to listen to people with PhDs, particularly when they are speaking about their area of expertise.

I'm certainly not trying to condemn any deer feeders out there.

In fact, I've been known to throw the odd apple or carrot to a deer, torso-high in snow, trying its best to stay alive during the winter.

However, if we really, truly care about these animals, it seems the best course of action is simply to learn to let nature do its thing.

Sign vandals should grow up

It's clear there has been fairly widespread vandalism of election signs in Minden Hills during the campaign, with some signs even being defaced.

There's nothing, it would seem, quite like an election campaign to bring out our inner children.

Candidates are working hard and in many cases have spent a great deal of money in order to attract our votes.

Let's respect that, shall we, and not illegally tamper with their signs?

Sign thieves and vandals need to grow up.

Minden has raised $14,000

To the Editor,

On behalf of the Minden Terry Fox Run committee I would like to thank everyone who participated in the annual run. This year was a special anniversary for the Terry Fox Run nationally as we were celebrating the 30th anniversary of Terry's Marathon of Hope. To all the participants we thank you as you were part of a record-breaking year for the Minden run. To date you raised $14,005.72, a remarkable feat for our town.

A very special thank you to the following businesses who donated products to our run. Without you we couldn't stage the run in our town: Dollo's Foodland, Minden Valumart, Shepherd's Septic Services, Kawartha Dairy, Minden Fruit and Vegetable Market, V & S Stedmans, Minden Pharmasave, Highlands Remedy Rx Drugstore, Water Depot, Matt Powers Pepsi Products, Jason Couglin Coke Products, Greg Phippen Frito Lay Products,

This campaign like none other

To the Editor

I've been a cottager here since the early '80s and moved here permanently in 1993. In that time I have never seen a political campaign like the current one.

Barb Reid said that all points of view around the council table are valid yet is running as part of a team of candidates. The idea of a group of like-minded individuals running as a team concerns me. Where is the opportunity to view issues from different perspectives and be creative in planning and decision-making?

The campaign has become unpleasant with false emailings, defaced or removed signs, and a number of negative comments directed at Reeve Jim McMahon. In a quarter page of the newspaper, Abby Xerri began by praising the current council and reeve then directed a series of questions at Reeve McMahon on a variety of subjects, in what I felt was an aggressive tone. TECHNOLOGY IS A GOOD THING for a writer. Because of it we don't have to play around with the nuances of old typewriter ribbons and whiteout – which, I guarantee, I would have had to buy by the gallon, if we were still living in those dark ages.

Instead we are lucky to have computers with their word processing programs and email. The latter is one of the best things ever. It allows a columnist like me to work from the comfort of home and send in masterpieces of literature on time. Then, after I've done this, I send in mine.

But lately, I've noticed that the email service around here is running slow. For instance, I finished and sent in my column at 4:45 a.m., having got up conscientiously early to meet my 9 a.m. deadline. Unfortunately, my editor got this at 11 a.m. What gives?

I'll tell you what, another delay from the email service. And this truly bothers me.

It's not like I'm to blame in any way, shape or form. I understand the technology of email. I'm putting the right amount of postage on these "letters." In fact, my computer screen is so covered in stamps that I had a hard time writing this thing. But did it help get my column in on time? No!

Steve Galea
Beyond 35

This bothers me more than a bit. I don't want my editor to think that the cause for my missed deadline has to do with the fact that I slept in or walked my dog or generally dawdled in the morning when I should have been writing. Not when I can blame email.

I don't get it either. I wrote the thing. Then I walked my cursor over to the mailbox and hit "send" at approximately 4:43 a.m. like all good writers do. Afterwards, I smiled knowing that I'd met yet another merciless deadline.

This should have been enough work for one day. Instead, my editor calls at 10:30 and says, "Hey Steve, we haven't received your column yet."

To which I yawn and then reply, "I sent it by email at 4:41 a.m. – priority post in fact. Are the email people on strike by any chance?"

She then expresses a mistaken belief that all editors have bought into – namely, that email is generally instantaneous. She then suggests that maybe I should seriously reconsider whether or not I even wrote this week's column. In response, I answer that of course I did. And then I point out that, if you discount perhaps two dozen or so times this year, I have never once missed a deadline.

Typically, editors, being what they are, insist that perhaps I should send it in again. That's when I mention that I deleted it, as I do all my columns, directly after writing it. And, so, unfortunately, I have to write another one.

The good news, I say, is that I won't charge her twice.

At this point, she is so happy that she hangs up. And so I get to writing the new column. And I finish it at about 11 a.m.

Lucky for everyone, the email strike is over by then.

The remains of Sapsucker Ridge

WHEN I LIFT A CHUNK of beech away from the wood pile, I uncover what looks like a cellophane tube, abandoned in the crevice between two pieces of maple.

It is panelled and almost lighter than air, this skin some garter snake squeezed its way out of in this inadvertent habitat it called home while the seasons cured the wood for burning.

This is the second snake skin from the top as I work my way down and I wonder if both were once worn by the same snake and how it must feel when your skin gets so full of you that you have to take it off.

While it lasts, a wood pile is a whole world and its disassembly sends its tenants scurrying. I am the landlord, handing out eviction notices.

On this brisk, bright October day, I hoist wriggling salamanders by their tails and set them in the next wood pile over and hope that their new neighbourhood suits them.

This woodland tenement is full of abandoned mouse nests, tangles of bark fragments, bits of leaves, grass and hair that fall through the cracks when I lift away the maple.

Though the nests are empty now, on warmer days the landlord might send a whole family of mice packing, though there is no time for packing.

They find a new hideyhole the next floor down that lasts for only a moment, then descend again, fleeing the inevitable, one floor at a time.

Scurrying mice and wriggling salamanders might be present, but the real clues to the richness of life on Sapsucker Ridge are the remains of lives left all around us, the shells and skeletons and bits of fur and feather.

Neil Campbell
Back of Beyond

Falling leaves cover the clues on the ground, but as they fall they uncover the secret of the bird's nest just over my head. It looks stark and fragile now, emptied of the life that once filled it.

Some clues are ambiguous. Is the bit of blue shell I found in July a discard from a successful hatch or a leftover from some blue jay's brunch?

The soft, white shells in the bend of the road to the sugar shack tell me that there was a snapping turtle here once but that something, probably a skunk or a coon, came along and dug up her family for breakfast.

A jumble of feathers is all that is left of a careless partridge that became somebody's dinner. The economy of my 50 acres purrs right along without my help. The Brown Dog Jiggs and I are only bystanders.

Sometimes one or the other of us brings home the remains and then can't figure out quite what to do with them. There was a year when a moose died of brain worm near the pond just across the road and Jiggs tried to carry it home, one bone at a time.

Discarded deer antlers sat in my woodshed for years until a friend took them away and one of the two turtle shells that sat next to the antlers all that time is now on my kitchen table.

The shells started out as whole turtles, mysteriously dead on the roadside, not crushed or cracked by a truck wheel, just inexplicably terminated by nature's whim.

Tiny scavengers excavated the flesh as the carcasses lay in my woodshed and now all that is left are the carapace and plastron and the stick-like bones of the legs.

The remains of one lie on my table, waiting for me to decide what to do with them. The upper shell, the carapace, might have made an ashtray, but now the outer skin that gave the shell its pattern seems ready to peel away, as fragile as snake skins.

What I will do with my luna moth is nothing. Its display case is the inverted plastic container atop my bookcase where it I put it two summers ago without benefit of formaldehyde.

The moth's pale green wings are still trimmed with brown, its tail intact. The brown dots on its wings still stare at me like a pair of eyes.

It will sit there undisturbed until one of us turns to dust.

been directed at the reeve and no one else who is serving or has served on council.

Reeve McMahon responded to Mr. Xerri's questions. He answered all questions respectfully and clearly identified that some of the issues that candidates were discussing were the mandate of others and not council. Knowing the limits of your job is important in utilizing time effectively and saving money.

Reeve McMahon did not make decisions alone. Issues are discussed and voted on with council. Barb Reid currently is representing Ward 2 and has had an opportunity to raise concerns.

Jim McMahon has served this community in a variety of ways for over 20 years. Many of the improvements and changes occurred when he was in office.

What bothers me the most is the feeling that politics has suddenly gotten ugly here.

A fond farewell and thank you to Wild Orchid and Gambell's Antiques

To the Editor,

I would like to extend to Ron and Suwann best wishes on their new journey and say thank you for the many wonderful years that the Wild Orchid and Gambell's Antiques has been in business in Minden Hills. You have served not only our community, but the many visitors that have travelled to and through Minden Hills. You have brought something very special to our community and for that we are truly thankful. We all look forward to your return to Minden Hills.

From Abstract to Landscape - Retrospective on John Lennard
September 15-November 20, Agnes Jamieson Gallery
In this exhibition John Lennard's life as an artist since 1964 will be realized. Works from his years at the Ontario College of Arts, Toronto and Student League, New York where a number of significant influences occurred and a range of styles were tried. See his early abstracts and latest stunning landscapes.

Celebrity Portraits by Fred Phipps
September 15-November 20, Agnes Jamieson Gallery
Fred Phipps had an amazing career working as the CBC photographer for over twenty-five years. Not only did he photograph Canada's most celebrated TV personalities but was the one and only photographer to capture the famous images of Karsh. Viewing this exhibition is reviewing Canada's TV culture from the 1960s onward. Stunning and rare these images are incredible but not as interesting as Phipps commentary and witty anecdotes on what it was like to photograph celebrities

Famous relative inspires 'voice' of the Highlands

While it might be hard to name a person who represents the "face" of the Highlands, putting a face to the "voice" of the Highlands is somewhat easier, and Dave Allen of Canoe FM gets the nod.

Sixty-seven per cent of Highlanders listen, at least part of the time to Canoe, which refers to itself as the collective voice of the county; but residents have heard Allen's distinctive tones on so many occasions extolling the virtues of various local businesses, that his is the individual voice of note.

George Farrell
Interesting people

George Farrell Special to the Times

Dave Allen fell in love with Haliburton and began courting the Highlands in 1994, moving up full time in 2002.

Dave Allen was born and raised in Montreal. He received an education in hotel management in upstate New York before moving to Toronto in 1971. During his stay in the city, he helped to open the Four Seasons Hotel (now the Sheraton Centre). Allen continued in the hospitality business in sales and marketing, working on behalf of such well-known establishments as the Inn on the Park and the Hyatt in Toronto, and the Four Seasons in Calgary.

"I remember when the Four Seasons was still basically a family-run enterprise, and now it's the No. 1 luxury chain in the world," he says.

Allen worked in hotels up until 1980 when he started his own business called Distinctive Hotels and Resorts Inc. It was a business that steered clients to some of the top resorts and hotels in North America. Allen continued with that basic concept for six years, and then changed streams to concentrate more on "working for clients to negotiate on their behalf with unique hotels, resorts and convention centres anywhere in the world, including Deerhurst in the Muskokas and the Pinestone, in Haliburton."

"I became familiar with the Muskokas, but fell in love with Haliburton," he says. "It was just the friendliness of the people."

By 1994, Dave Allen started coming to the Highlands regularly on weekends. He initially stayed with friends, but his weekends started getting longer and longer. "I just didn't want to go home," he says; and in 2002 he made the move to live here permanently.

"I'd had enough of the rat race, but I needed to find a way of making a living here," he recalls, citing the refrain heard many times over by new residents. Allen found work in cottage maintenance, but he made very little money, and the work was hard, and sometimes dirty.

In July of 2007 he answered an ad for a sales job at the Canoe FM radio station. He filled in his application, but nothing happened for a while. Several months later Canoe FM founder Don Cameron called.

"At the time of Don's call I was knee-deep in mud, digging a heat-line trench. Don asked me if I was still interested in the job. I was ecstatic, and told him I'd be right over. I went to the interview covered in mud, and they asked me if I had any other clothes," Allen says with a hearty laugh.

Dave loves his job as the advertising sales rep at Canoe, but he also fills in, wherever he's needed. "Initially I was vacuuming, doing dump runs, which I still do, and going over to Dover Springs for water," he says. Allen has done many other things including helping out with the Santa Claus parades and slogging through snow drifts to take workers to the transmission tower during breakdowns. "And I'm still available 24/7 for emergencies," he assures.

Allen started to do on-air location work, in addition to his day-to-day sales job, and he found he liked that end of things, and was good at it. He now also does voice-overs on commercials, and he prides himself on giving customers the same amount of attention whether they're spending hundreds, or thousands of dollars, and whether their businesses are in Haliburton, Minden, or anywhere else in the county. "I write most of the ad copy, too," Allen says, and for that he gets inspiration from an amazing source.

"On my mother's side I'm a blood relation to Samuel Clemens, better known as Mark Twain," he reveals, "and that inspires me when I'm writing copy. I just enjoy the whole process of sitting down with a client. I listen very carefully, and that enables me to understand their needs, to write an effective script and record the voice-over.

Allen's family is important to him and he's especially proud of 23-year-old daughter, Chelsey, who lives in West Vancouver and graduated from UBC last spring. She is now writing her MBA and considering a law career. Chelsey was also a Victory Medal host at the 2010 Winter Olympic Games in Vancouver.

When Dave Allen is at home he enjoys his hobby of cooking comfort food, and his chili recipe won second prize at the Minden Winterfest Annual Chile Competition. But while he enjoys good food, Allen lives and breathes Canoe.

"It's just so gratifying when a customer tells me that their campaign worked because of Canoe," says Allen. "That's ultimately what you want to hear."

Dave Allen hears quite a bit from satisfied customers, and you can hear a lot of Dave Allen on Canoe FM.

Identity theft and fraud more common than people realize

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

Financial scams such as identity theft and fraud can happen to anybody living anywhere, even in a small town like Haliburton.

A presentation made by financial consultant Cindy Trapp of Investors Group at the Chamber of Commerce breakfast held on Oct. 14 at the Minden Legion outlined some of the common misunderstandings and misconceptions that lead people to becoming victims of these crimes.

"How many of you here can give me your social insurance card," asked Trapp at the beginning of the presentation.

While those in attendance were hesitant to hand over their card, many admitted to not even carrying such personal documents with them.

Cindy Trapp presented at the chamber breakfast last week.

"I'm glad to see you didn't fall for my trick," said Trapp, "and that most of you know enough to not carry a card like this or your birth certificate on you. It's documents like these that make it easy for people to steal your identity or gain access to your financial information."

According to Trapp, identity theft and investment fraud are on the rise for a number of reasons, including the economic recession.

"In Canada in 2007, an estimated 1.7 million Canadian adults were the victims of some kind of identity fraud. That amounts to almost 6.5 per cent of the adult Canadian population. It is also estimated that these victims spent approximately 20 million hours and a staggering $150 million plus to resolve problems associated with these frauds," said Trapp during her presentation, referencing information from a 2008 consumer survey titled Measuring Identity Theft in Canada.

There are a number of ways to prevent fraud from happening to you, said Trapp. Tips include frequently changing account passwords, checking your credit report, not giving out your social insurance number, protecting your computer, keeping track of billing cycles, examining financial statements, guarding your mail from theft, investing in a shredder and practising safe shopping, especially when it comes to online shopping.

Following Trapp's presentation, a number of those in attendance shared experiences of instances of identity theft or fraud that had happened to them. Many of the examples included phone-call scams, cyber crimes or issues with stolen credit card information.

"Many people think things like this only happen in bigger cities," said Trapp. "The truth is it can happen in a place like Haliburton to anyone."

The next chamber of commerce breakfast is scheduled to take place on Nov. 4 at Bonnie View Inn.

Go back in time with The Story of the Camera

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

The Minden Hills Cultural Centre is offering a unique opportunity to explore the history of a device that has become central to our culture with The Story of the Camera.

The exhibit opened Oct. 5 and will continue until this Saturday, Oct. 23, when local photographic gurus Joe Smith and Reg Holloway will put on workshops.

From 2 to 3 p.m. Holloway will perform camera valuations, where, as Minden Hills Museum curator Caroline McLachlan Darling said, "Reg will discuss the special features behind [the cameras] and how much they're worth or not worth."

From 3 to 4 p.m., Smith will have set up a historic photo studio, where guests can dress in period costume as he takes their photos with an old Polaroid.

Both Smith and Holloway have extensive antique camera collections and several of their pieces are on display as part of the exhibit.

"I've always been interested in photography," said Smith, explaining he'd received his first camera at the age of 10. Working in advertising for years, he worked closely with photographers, but said it wasn't until he purchased his first digital camera that he really became interested in old cameras and started collecting voraciously.

"There's something about film cameras that I like," Smith said. "I find it fascinating, the history of it and the different methods that were used."

With close to 100 cameras in his collection, he has a particular fascination with the Argus brand, of which he owns some 30 models.

As Smith explained, the company was the first to make 35-millimetre cameras that were affordable for the general population.

> They say if it wasn't for the Argus camera . . . [the 35-millimetre] may not have become as popular as it did.
> — Joe Smith

"They say if it wasn't for the Argus camera . . . [the 35-millimetre] may not have become as popular as it did."

Holloway, too, is drawn to the history of the device and its evolution, so much so that he's written a book on the history of the press camera, copies of which are available at the cultural centre.

Holloway started out as an apprentice photographer and reporter in England in 1947 and while he went on to do other things in the way of a profession, his early career sent him on a lifelong journey of collecting cameras.

Some of his collection dates back to the 19th century.

"[The exhibit] looks at both the technical impact and the social impact of the camera," McLachlan Darling said.

Along with parts of Smith's and Holloway's collections, the story of photography, which has some Canadian connections, is also told through a series of posters and old camera advertisements.

For children, there is a craft centre where they can make their own pinhole cameras, which they are free to take home.

Tank now atop tower

The tank on Minden Hills's water tower was lifted into place by work crews on Monday morning. Township staff say roofing will be going on over the next few weeks and that painting should start shortly. It is estimated the tower, located at the top of St. Germaine Street, will be functional in January. /Submitted

Head municipal staffer honoured for 30 years

Chad Ingram
Staff reporter

Gerry Morrison says he can't imagine what he would have done with his life if he hadn't gotten into municipal administration.

The Minden Hills chief administrative officer was recently honoured with an award from the Association of Municipal Managers, Clerks and Treasurers of Ontario for his 30 years of membership in the association.

"I think I would have wound up in public service, one way or another," Morrison said, seated in his office earlier this week.

Educated at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute where he studied business administration and Seneca College where he earned certification in government and municipal administration, Morrison began his career in Kincardine as the community's treasurer.

From there, he went on to become treasurer in Midland and then lived 11 years in Cobourg working for Cramahe township in Northumberland County before starting as CAO of Minden Hills eight years ago.

"I've had what I would say is a wonderful, wonderful career," Morrison said. "The most gratifying part for me is making a difference and working with staff and making them feel like they're part of a real team and making them want to come to work."

Morrison said he's also proud of the grants the township has been able to get during his tenure (approximately $6 million during the last term of council), in particular the $500,000 the township received for the upgrades to the Lutterworth Pines drinking water system, for which he lobbied hard.

"When I got word [of the funding] . . . I could hardly speak," he said. "I actually broke down here in the office . . . knowing that those residents were boiling their water down there for five years."

A job like Morrison's comes with no shortage of challenges, the greatest one of all, he said, just holding onto the job itself.

When an election happens, Morrison said, you're dealing with a new council, some of who may have gotten elected by speaking out against municipal staffers.

"You have to work with all of them as a team," he said. "This job calls for recommendations. When you have seven different opinions, not everyone's going to be happy."

Morrison plans to retire some time in 2012, after which he and his wife will likely be heading back to the Cobourg area to be around their children and grandchildren.

Morrison hopes he gets to enjoy at least a few retirement years in Haliburton County and knows after he's gone, he'll still come back to visit Minden Hills.

"I want to come back here and I want to walk that Riverwalk," he said, adding that this is something he tries to do most days during his lunch break. "I'm part of that project. It's going to be a sad day when I walk away from here, and what I want to say, is 'I did my best.'"

County's size a major challenge: minister

Tour of county reveals transportation issues to provincial minister

Jenn Watt
Editor

Haliburton County's problem isn't that it doesn't have programs, services and infrastructure for children and families – it's that those aids are situated so far from one another, Ontario's minister of children and youth says.

On a tour of the county along with local MPP Rick Johnson, Laurel Broten had a chance to speak with workers at Point in Time, the Children's Aid Society and YWCA about the challenges faced in this community.

The primary concern she heard was the Highlands' wide-open spaces.

"How do we help families achieve the best outcomes for their kids when the distances to travel are far? When the services are not next door?" Broten said during a brief interview with local media at the Kosy Korner Oct. 14.

"We need to understand: how do you get the services out to the front lines in a community like this one? And that is critically important to me," she said.

Broten is one of several ministers who has visited the riding of Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock in the past few months, but is the only one who has made it all the way to this county.

The knowledge she gained from talking to service providers here will help her make decisions in her role at Queen's Park – which also includes being the minister responsible for women's issues and heading up the poverty reduction strategy for the province. To address some of the issues facing families here, Broten cited the government's child benefit and all-day kindergarten (coming to Minden next September) as prime examples of how policy would impact lives.

She noted that other government programs not specifically labelled as "poverty reduction" do pull people up, such as the second career initiative and elearnnetwork.ca, both delivered in part through Fleming College. When asked whether the poverty reduction strategy would be addressing rural issues as distinct from urban ones, Broten was unsure.

Both she and Johnson reiterated that much of the rural dilemma is inadequate transportation tying services and citizens together.

"It's nice that you can have a skateboard park right here at the bottom of the hill, but if you can't get to it ... it's part of a bigger issue. It was raised this morning [at Point In Time] as a challenge for area youth," Johnson said.

Broten also praised the local Children's Aid Society for being in good fiscal shape and working so closely with other service providers to bridge the geographic gaps.

Class of 2010 - HHSS Honours and Awards

Chad Ingram and Darren Lum
Staff reporters

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School celebrated the past year's academic achievements with two days of ceremony, highlighted by the presentation of the Governor General's Academic Medal to Kara Pogue from retired HHSS principal Gary Brohman on Saturday, Oct. 9.

Principal Dan Marsden said, "I want to congratulate, not just the winners, but everybody in the school … The four years you're here and what you bring to our school makes us better because of the spirit that you bring to our school every day."

There were nearly 200 awards with a total value of almost $38,000 that were handed out to the school's graduates at the honours and awards ceremony on Oct. 9.

Hundreds of students were recognized for their academic achievements by the school and included retired teacher Walter Tose as presenter. He received a raucous standing ovation when principal Dan Marsden presented him with a gift from school staff and friends, starting on the preceding Friday with awards for perfect attendance and recognition of honours students.

Ford GENUINE PARTS & SERVICE

ford.ca

All offers expire November 30, 2010. See service advisor for complete details. Applicable taxes and provincial levies not included. Dealer may sell for less. ‡Applies to single rear wheel vehicles only. ^Based on a Ford Fusion V6 automatic that has a fuel consumption rating of 10L/100km in combined city/highway driving (properly tuned), a one-year driving distance of 24,000km and $1.02 per litre for gasoline. Improved fuel efficiency and emission reduction levels depend on model, year and condition of vehicle. * Up to 5 litres of oil. Disposal fees may be extra. Does not apply to diesel engines. Applies to winter tires that are already mounted and balanced. Stems and weights may be extra. Only available for vehicles under 10,000 lbs GVWR. Some restrictions apply. ◊Excludes emergency brake pads or shoes. Machining or replacement of rotors and drums available at additional costs. †Ford Protection Plan is only available for non-commercial cars and light trucks. If an eligible Ford, Motorcraft® or Ford-approved part fails due to a defect in material or workmanship, wear out or rust through, it will be replaced at no charge as long as the original purchaser of the part owns the vehicle on which the part was installed. Labour is covered for the first 12 months or 20,000 km (whichever occurs first) after the date of installation. Emergency brake pads are not eligible under this plan. See Service Advisor for complete details and limitations. [1] Limited time offer. In order to receive a competitor's advertised price, tires must be purchased and installed at your participating Ford Dealer. Offer only available at participating Ford dealerships. This offer is valid on the cost of the tire only and does not include labour costs, valve stems, mounting, balancing, disposal and taxes. The competitor's advertised price must have been printed within 30 days of the sale and the tires must be the same brand, sidewall, speed and load ratings as shown in the competitive advertisement. Competitor's advertised prices do not include eBay advertisements, tire wholesalers, online tire retailers, closeout, special order, discontinued clearance and liquidation offers. Offer may be cancelled or changed at any time without prior notice. See your service advisor. [2] Rebate offers are manufacturer's mail-in rebates. Rebates available from Pirelli, Continental (Petro Canada branded gift card), General Tire (Quebec only), Goodyear/Dunlop, Bridgestone (AMEX branded prepaid card), Michelin and BFGoodrich. Offers are valid on qualifying sets of four tires, purchased and installed at participating locations during the respective promotion periods for each tire brand. Offer is valid on the cost of the tire(s) only and does not include labour costs, valve stems, mounting, balancing, disposal and taxes. Amount of rebates, start dates and expiration dates vary depending on tire manufacturer. It is the responsibility of the customer to submit the required claim forms and proof of purchase to the relevant tire manufacturer with sufficient postage by the required deadline for that rebate offer. See your Service Advisor for complete details and claim forms. [4] Storage term is at the dealer's sole discretion, up to a maximum of one year. This offer may not be combined with any other offer. ± Some conditions apply. See Dealer for details.

Storm season starts

The following are summaries of Highland Storm hockey games written by Dan Marsden, Paul Morissette and Suzanne Haedicke.

The Minden Car Quest Bantam C girls' hockey team defeated Ennismore Eagles Oct. 14 by a score of 6 to 0.

Connor Marsden had the shut out, Erin Little had two snipes along with Kenndal Marsden, Maddie Billings, Sydney Feir and Nicole Black all having single tallies. The Bantam C girls were on the road last weekend playing Cold Creek Saturday night and Linday Sunday afternoon.

Next home game is Oct. 24 against Ennismore in Minden at 6:30.

Peppermill Highland Storm Novice team off to good start

The Peppermill Novice Storm hockey team if off to an excellent start in the early stages of the 2010-2011 season. The team has a three win, one loss record in their first four league games and one win and a tie in exhibition play with Bancroft. The team lost their first game to Huntsville 6-1 but bounced back with three straight victories defeating Port Carling 5-3, Parry Sound 5-2 and Bracebridge 3-2. This year's squad features balanced scoring from forwards Mikki Bukta, Tyson Clements, Alex Little, Benn NacNaull, Zach Morissette and Paul Turner. The aggressive defensive corps is anchored by James Alexander, Ethan Glecoff, Ryan Hall and Issac Little. Backstopping the team between the pipes is the stellar goaltending provided by Nigel Smith. The coaching staff, consisting of head coach Jason Morissette, assistant coach Clay Glecoff, trainers Rich Smith and Mike Morissette and manager Paul Morissette, is confident that this group of young hockey players will continue to improve and provide excellent and exciting hockey as the season progresses. The team is on the road over the next few weeks and will play its next two home games in Minden Oct. 28 at 6:30 against Bracebridge and on Oct. 30 at 9 against Huntsville. Come on out and support the boys.

Highland Storm Atom A – Weekend of Hockey

The Highland Storm Atom A team hosted Parry Sound over Thanksgiving weekend with three thrilling games. The excitement began in Minden on Friday, Oct. 8. Both teams came out flying, but despite a great team effort from the Storm, they chalked up their first 6-4 loss. Goals scored by Owen Gilbert, Nik Dollo and two goals by Owen (Smitty) Smith.

The assists came from Kyle Cooper, Josh Boice, Owen Smith, Lucas Haedicke and Devyn Prentice. The excitement continued in Haliburton on Saturday, Oct. 10 when the Storm was ready for the challenge. The team came together with exceptional saves by Josh Bellefleur and managed to bounce back, receiving their second tie of the season at 2-2.

Goals scored by Nolan Flood and Owen (Smitty) Smith. Assists came by Owen Gilbert and Nik Dollo. This boost of confidence shined in the last game on Saturday afternoon when the Storm took control. Both the offence and defence stepped up to achieve a well-deserved 4-2 win over Parry Sound. This puts them into second place with six points.

(Near) perfect pitch

The following are Haliburton Highlands Secondary School sports briefs compiled by Judi Paul's class for the week of Oct. 13–18.

Tuesday, Oct. 12

The Varsity A field hockey team remains unbeaten this season as they defeated Adam Scott 6-0.

Special mention for midfielders Tara O'Sullivan, Brigitta Hicks and Jessica Bishop for their tremendous leadership.

The Varsity B field hockey team celebrated two victories yesterday, defeating Bracebridge and Parry Sound.

Thursday, Oct. 14

The Varsity A field hockey team took on long-time rivals North Hastings where intense play resulted in a 4-0 win for Haliburton. Excellent defensive play by Lily Coneybeare, Vicky Bukta, and Jessica Duchene.

Amazing goals by Jillian Mayhew, Lindsey Pogue and Grace Diezel. The Varsity B field hockey team played Bancroft, with the game ending in a 0-0 tie.

The senior boys' soccer team travelled to Cannington to play the Brock High School Bulldogs.

Brett Yake scored a pair of goals for a first half lead; however, the Bulldogs tied it up in the second half for a final score of 2-2. The junior Red Hawks soccer team played extremely well against Brock High School, winning another dominating game.

Goal scorers were Tyler Nolan, Tanner Hamilton, Darcy Schmidt, Brad Wood, and Jake Harrison.

Bantam C girls remain undefeated

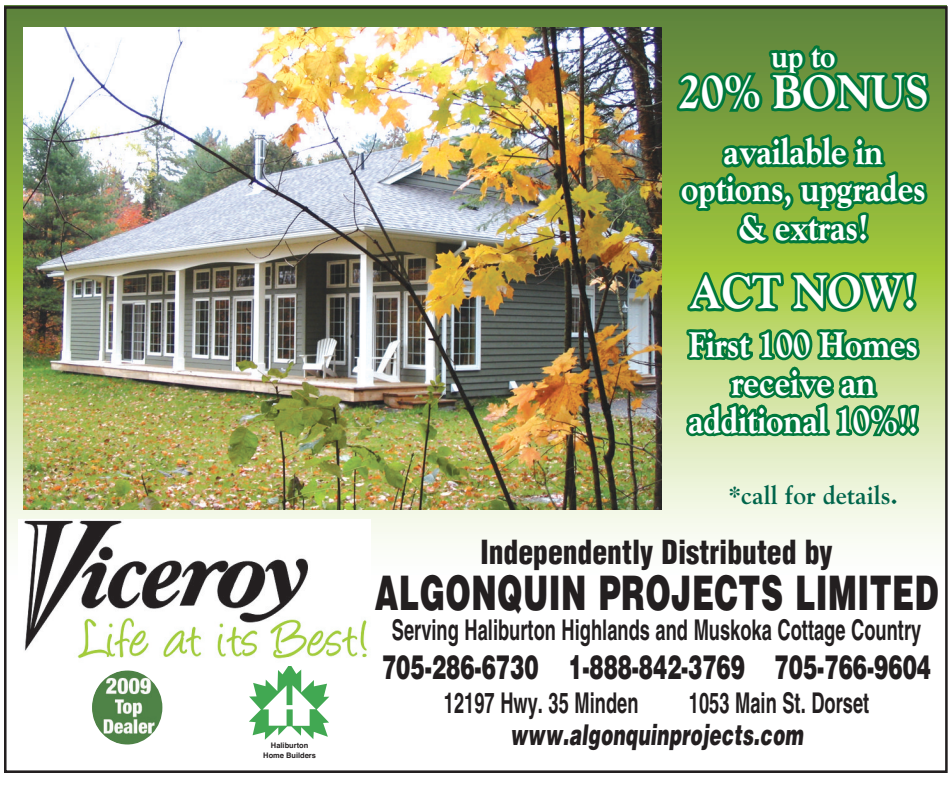

The Minden Car Quest Bantam girls' hockey team had a successful weekend. We travelled to Cold Creek on Saturday night to face the Comets in a tightly contested 3-2 win for the Storm. Erin Little had the game winner.

On Sunday, the Bantam C girls were back on the road to face off against the Lindsay Lynx in Oakwood for an afternoon tilt.

The team worked hard and supported Connor Marsden in a 4-0 shutout win to keep their early undefeated (go Maple Leafs) season in shape. Four single tallies went to Erin Little, Alex Litwin, Sydney Feir and Cassidy Garbutt – her first of the season.

Bantam C girls' next game is in Minden Sunday, Oct. 24 at 6:30 p.m.

One win, one loss for Peewee AE

Our first game of the weekend was on Friday, Oct. 15 in Baysville against the Bracebridge Bears. This was not a pretty game, our boys did not have their hockey heads on, so there seemed to be a lot of scrambling around. Despite this they managed to pull off a win of 8-0, another shutout for goalie, Parker Smolen. Goals going to Drew Van Lieshout (2), Ethan Cooper (2),Max MacNaull (2),Jake Bull, and Greg Crofts. Assists to Tim Burgess (2),Max MacNaull (2),Ethan Cooper (4),Greg Crofts (3) Josh Rowden, Reagan Casey and Drew Van Lieshout.

Our second game of the weekend was on Sunday, Oct. 17, in Minden against the Almaguin Devils and true to their name they gave our boys a "heck" of a time. With several wins under their belts the Storm boys were maybe feeling a little over confident, so the Devils gave our boys a wake-up call. It still took till the third period for our boys to get into true hockey mode, but by then it was too late. The win went to the Devils with a score of 7-2. Both the Storm goals were scored in the third period, one by Mac Rider (unassisted) and the other by Alex Wilbee assisted by Greg Crofts. We hope Max is feeling better and we all wish a speedy recovery to Peewee A player Andrew Hall. Once again thanks to our sponsor Randy's Tree Care and Landscaping.

Also a thank you to our bench for their time, Mike MacNaull (coach),Kirk Cooper (manager),Wilf Van Lieshout (trainer) and Susan Burgess for organizing and take care of the gate and 50/50. We do not have a home game until Saturday Oct. 30 in Minden at 1 p.m.

Atom AE defeats Port Carling, Gravenhurst and Almaguin

The Atom AE Storm keeps thundering along, starting a three game stretch this weekend with a 7-1 victory over Port Carling in Minden on Thursday. The victory was an impressive display with most of the play locked in the opposition end.

Sean Walker netted a hat-trick, Ben Schmidt had two and singles were counted by Bo Stevenson and Matthew Manning. Assists were attributed to Trevor Turner with three, Noah Black with a pair, and Ryan Prentice, Bo Stevenson, Cullen Johnston, Jesse Sisson with one each.

On Saturday, the team continued its thunderous rumble, shutting out Gravenhurst 6-0 in Rama. Carson Sisson made some great saves to ensure the shut-out. Goals were tallied by Matthew Manning who had two, Trevor Turner, Alexander Petrie, Ben Schmidt and Noah Black. Assists went to: Noah Black, Jaxson Campbell, Trevor Turner, Shawn Walker and Ben Schmidt.

And finally, Sunday's game was a little more rough-and-tumble but the home side still came out ahead, beating a speedy Almaguin squad, 10-4 in Minden.

Goals in this game were credited to Ben Schmidt who had five, Trevor Turner with two, Noah Black, Shawn Walker and Matthew Manning with one each. Assists were awarded to Shawn Walker, Ryan Prentice and Matthew Manning with three each, Ben Schmidt and Bo Stevenson.

Special thanks go to Floyd Hall Insurance for sponsoring the undefeated squad. Be sure to check their next game this Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in Haliburton as they take on Gravenhurst.

The Winterfest 2011 Ontario Senior Games awards were on display for the first time at the Haliburton games office on Friday, Oct. 15. They are being made by local glass artists at Artech Glassblowing Studios.

Winterfest awards unveiled

The organizers of Winterfest 2011 are celebrating more than just sport as they have enlisted the creativity and skill of local artists for the production of the athletes' awards.

Marci Mandel and the special events committee through the Haliburton Arts Council chose Tory Hill artists Terry Craig and Jennifer Wanless–Craig of Artech Glassblowing Studios from four submissions.

"We are excited to be a part of this venture. As artists, it is always wonderful to be recognized as a business that can work in conjunction with this type of event–art and sports. Haliburton is a great place that understands that these partnership are possible," said Craig of Artech Glassblowing Studios.

The glass circular awards, engraved with the snowman event logo in the centre, Winterfest 2011 underneath and Ontario Senior Games along the top were on display at the organizing office in Haliburton this Friday.

Artech will be busy in the months leading up to the games producing the 450 awards as they can only produce six of the glass awards a day.

"Haliburton County is renown as a hockey and an arts community, so it is only fitting to send these athletes home with not just a sport award, but also a piece of art from Haliburton," said Marci Mandel of the Winterfest committee.

seek and interview those with operational concerns related to the Fire Prevention and Protection Act 1997, the Occupational Health and Safety Act, other legislative requirements and the council-approved master fire plan," an Oct. 19 press release from the township read. "The purpose of this approach is to allow the firefighters to express themselves to an objective third party who will have no bias. A report will be provided to council in order to determine what, if any, actions may be necessary to correct any operational deficits identified."

The release stipulates that those interviews will not include the activities of Dorset's firefighters' association, which has removed its equipment from the fire hall, since it operates independently from the township.

In the meantime, firefighters from two nearby Lake of Bays stations as well as the firehalls at Oxtongue Lake and Stanhope will continue to be on standby to deal with an incidents that may arise in Dorset.

"The widespread suggestion that members of council don't care about or understand this situation is vastly incorrect," the release read. "Members are highly aware, very concerned and committed to an organized and methodical approach to the continuation of legislated emergency services in the Dorset area."

The release says council will not consider allowing the Dorset station to revert to its pre-amalgamation status, operating as an independent hall, which had been suggested at all-candidates meeting in Dorset last week.

A number of Dorset citizens said they felt unsafe in light of the situation with the fire department during the meeting.

Former Dorset fire chief Clint MacKay is one of the people who has quit the department.

pretty vulgar things put on there."

"For me, three of my large signs were vandalized, one small one was kicked over and ripped off the post and four signs have gone missing," said fellow Ward 1 candidate Brigitte Gall.

Ward 2 candidate Richard Bradley said he'd experienced similar incidents with some of his signs and had contacted the OPP.

"It has been suggested to me that this could be from wind, but I do not think a wind would snap a wooden stick or rip a sign off a steel post," Bradley said.

Ken Redpath, also running in Ward 2, said he'd had signs of his stolen from Deep Bay Road and that while he had new ones made to replace them, signs have gone missing again. Fellow Ward 2 candidate Craig Birchall said he's also had signs stolen and damaged.

"I am disappointed in the people who would do these acts," Birchall said. "On the other hand, the camaraderie between candidates helping fix each others' signs is commendable." Larry Clarke, running for councillor-at-large, said he too had been touched that other candidates had helped repair the signs he'd had damaged.

Culture get spooky in Minden Hills

This Halloween the Minden Hills Cultural Centre has decided to help with the Community Centre Halloween Dance instead of allowing our museum ghosts to roam about for our storytelling evening. The ghosts will visit the dance instead and bring along some zombies and witches. The Halloween dance will be held on Friday, Oct. 29 with a family dance from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. followed by an adult dance from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. with a cash bar. The cost is $2 for children and $5 after 9 p.m.

There will be two options upon entering the dance. If you dare, you may go through the haunted corridor that will be sure to scare you until your hair stands on end! Beware of Luma, the witchcraft fortuneteller who will be forecasting doom. The shrieking and bone crunching sounds along with things jumping out will spook everyone! Or you may enter through the normal door. But it will be worth it as the best costume for youth will win a cash prize of $75! The best adult prize will be given $100. The night will include games for the kids, door prizes and music videos.

And psssst! There will be two surprise visits from a famous person who will thrill you…ahh, ha, ha, ha!

It will be a spootacular fun time for the whole family!

In the following month the Agnes Jamieson Gallery's Members' Show begins. For those who enjoy doing artwork, and are a member of the gallery (or would like to be a member) this is your opportunity to be part of a non-juried art show. The deadline for artwork to be entered is Nov. 19. Entry form and rules can be found on the centre's website in the gallery's section www.mindenculturalcentre.com. The show runs from Nov. 25 to Dec. 18. This is a great way to see a variety of artwork, by people you may not even know do art, as well as to vote for your favourite in the People's Choice Award. The closing reception for this show is Dec. 18 at 3 p.m. where Holiday Cheer will be served and the People's Choice Award will be announced. It's a fun time to enjoy your gallery and maybe do some Christmas shopping in our gift shop. Mark it on your calendar today!

From Nov. 10 to Dec. 19 the R.D. Lawrence Place presents Black and White

R.D. Lawrence learned his photography on board a ship shooting first class passengers but his work took a serious turn as a journalist, particularly when he was reporting back from the Congo during its civil war. This exhibition will include African artifacts and also showcase photographs of Lawrence's expeditions across Canada and the wildlife he met along the way.

The centre will then close for the Holidays from Dec. 19 to Jan. 5, opening with a new and exciting list of community programming. The Agnes Jamieson Gallery is now, however, looking for youth ten years and older who would be enthusiastic in working with artist Rose Pearson and curator Laurie Carmount in creating a series of work for an exhibition entitled "They Sketch…They Paint." This will require three consecutive Sundays in Jan. 9, 16 and 23 from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. It will involve working with acrylics paints in a mixed media format. There is no cost. For more information please call the gallery at 286-3763 Tuesday to Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Many thanks to the Hallowe'en Dance Sponsors: Township of Minden Hills; Highland Park Homes; Dominion Hotel; Dam Music Shop; V&S Store; Wacky Moose; Pharmasave Minden; Food Mart Minden; Molly's Bistro; County Sign; Organic TIMES; The Hair Lounge and Moose FM.

R.D. Lawrence Place seeks writer-in-residence

R.D. Lawrence Place is accepting applications for the 2011 Writer In-Residence program.

This is a volunteer position with an honourarium. The WIR program is five years old and has had many different types of writers, says Sheryl Loucks, R.D. Lawrence Place coordinator. She encourages any writer with an interest in developing their career and working with the public to call her about the program. The goal of the residency is to contribute to the development of an active writing community with the intent of adding to the cultural experience of residents, cottagers, and visitors. The WIR stimulates the writing culture already alive here through creative new ideas and providing encouragement for the writing process, says Loucks.

Some examples of the type of programming the WIR does, says Loucks, is the Giggles and Ghosts program that the current WIR Laura Redman is offering at the Wilberforce Branch of the Haliburton County Public Library on October 30 from 1 to 2pm. The program is free for young children and their families.

Loucks says they have also launched their annual creative writing contest which is called Back Words this year. The WIR is helping to generate interest in the contest and is one of the judges. She also picked the five words writers young and old must incorporate into their stories: umbrella, canoe, Gelert, dancing and library.

To find out more about the Writer In-Residence program and the benefits it provides such as networking with international award winning authors through the literary festival, then Loucks encourages people to visit the website page in the R.D. Lawrence Place section at www.mindenculturalcentre.com, email rdlawrenceplace@mindenhills.ca or call 286-2998. The WIR program is supported by the Haliburton County Public Library and the Haliburton Highlands Writers and Editors Network.

R.D. Lawrence Place is a literary centre and a museum dedicated to Ronald Douglas Lawrence, an internationally published award winning author of 30 books on Canadian wildlife and the environment. R.D. Lawrence Place is housed in a sustainable straw bale building constructed by Fleming College students. R.D.L.P. is a part of the Minden Hills Cultural Centre which is owned and operated by the Township of Minden Hills. The centre consists of the Agnes Jamieson Gallery, Minden Hills Museum, Minden Library Branch and R.D. Lawrence Place. R.D.L.P. has a mandate to foster a love of reading, promote the art of writing and deepen respect for natural heritage. The Place opened in 2008 and has had more than 8,000 visits including people from every continent on the globe.

There will be a foot clinic at the Dorset Recreation Centre on Wednesday, Oct. 27. For more information or to book an appointment, please call Joy at 766-1418.

The Dorset Lions Club and Dorset Recreation Committee are once again joining forces to provide lots of fun Halloween activities for the children of the Dorset area.

The Children's Pumpkin Carving Party is slated to take place on Saturday, Oct. 30 from 6 to 7 p.m. The evening starts out with hot dogs (including veggie wieners for vegetarians) and refreshments. Pumpkins and carving tools are provided. All kids need to bring are their imaginations for creating their own unique jack-o'-lantern. Please call the recreation centre at 766-9968 to reserve your pumpkin.

The fun continues on Sunday night from 7 to 8 p.m. with the annual children's Hallowe'en party. There will be a free draw for prizes, games and activities as well as the infamous and huge Dorset Lions Club treat bags.

Birthday wishes for the week of Oct. 17 to 23 go out to Taylor MacKay and Ruth Morris and Happy Anniversary to Valerie and Don Inch. For all who have birthdays, anniversaries special occasions this week, have fun on your special day!

To submit an item of interest or a birthday wish, please email me at melalfano@hotmail.com or give me a call at 705-766-0076.

St. Patrick's Church, Kinmount invites you to join with us in celebrating our 100th Anniversary on Sunday, October 24th, 2010

St. Patrick's Church
4026 County Rd. 121, Kinmount, Ontario

Mass at 10:30
Followed by a reception at Galway Hall
579 Galway Road, Kinmount

We look forward to seeing you.

Brief History
In 1874 Father F. Fitzpatrick conceived the idea of the first parish church located on Lot 5 and Concession 12 of Galway Township. The church was blessed by Bishop Jamot on January 12, 1883 and was dedicated to Our Lady of Immaculate Conception. On Easter Sunday night in 1930 the Church was destroyed by Fire and was never rebuilt. However, Father Patrick James Galvin had secured a specific piece of land for a new church near the Gull River. In 1910 Father Galvin opened the new red brick church in Kinmount. By May 24, 1910 the corner-stone was blessed and laid by Bishop R. A. O'Connor who presided at its official opening and blessing on October 26 of the same year. The church was dedicated to St. Patrick, the baptismal patron of the pastor.

Shades of déjà vu

Shades of déjà vu. My eighteenth summer included working in the Food Building at the Canadian National Exhibition selling Double Bubble Gum. Part of the job description was to chew these cartoon wrapped perfect pink squares then blow impressive bubbles at the unsuspecting crowds passing by. Supervisor Harold was a handsome medical student and the impressionable group on booth duty were torn between hoping he would come by more frequently and the chance to call out a garbled product name such as Scubble Gubble or worse without fear of discovery. Fast forward to today. Have you ever found yourself staring fixated at the toothpaste display in the supermarket trying to choose among promises of white bright, gum health, heightened romance and much more?

Case in point, in the upstairs bathroom a large tube of a major brand snatched from the shelf in quiet desperation remains relatively untouched. On closer label reading not only is it marketed for children, but a pink bubble-gum flavoured blue gel containing sparkles!

Military conducts training in Dorset

The Canadian Forces will be conducting a basic military training course for 38 Canadian Rangers next week at the Lion's Camp near Dorset.

Canadian Rangers are part-time, reserve soldiers who provide a military presence in Canada's remote and isolated regions. They provide skilled assistance in emergencies such as searches for missing persons, plane crashes, evacuations, forest fires and floods.

"The Lion's Camp is an excellent facility for the type of training we are doing," said Major Guy Ingram, comanding officer of 3rd Canadian Ranger Patrol Group at Canadian Forces Base Borden. "It gives us a good adminstrative and logistics set-up, as well as a training area we can use.

"The training won't affect the public in any way. The Canadian Rangers will be mostly at the camp. They will also be out a bit on nearby Crown land, using ATV trails and roads for ground search and rescue training. But there will be no disruption to public activities.

"On Tuesday, Oct. 26, they will do live firing at the shooting range on North Margaret Lake Road, near the Frost Centre Institute."

The Canadian Rangers taking part in the training will come from 18 remote Cree, Oji-Cree and Ojibwa settlements in Ontario's Far North with Ranger patrols. Sixteen of the communities have no year-round road access. Most of the students will be skilled hunters, trappers and fishers who use their intimate knowledge of their local territories to provide invaluable assistance to the Canadian Forces. They are also first responders in many emergency situations.

The Rangers wear distinctive red sweaters and red ball caps, combat pants and combat boots. The camp will have 15 full-time members of the Canadian Forces to run it and provide instruction.

Training will include basic drill, general military knowledge, navigation, including how to use maps, compasses and GPS, first aid and communication.

Church celebrates 100 years

The congregation of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Kinmount extends a warm invitation to the community to attend a special mass this Sunday, Oct. 24 at 10:30 a.m. on the occasion of its 100th anniversary.

Congratulations to Bev Wetmore, a Crego Lake cottager, the Studio Tour winner of the gift certificate for the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace. Please note that the Marketplace is back on an extended weekend schedule opening on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays normally from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Plans are well underway for the Kinmount and Area Artisans Guild's annual Christmas Bazaar coming up on Saturday, November 20th in the Community Centre.

For an earlier start on the holiday season come out to the Burnt River United Church's Christmas Craft Sale on Saturday, Oct. 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Burnt River Community Centre. Lunch will be available and there will a variety of local crafters on board plus a white elephant table of bargains. The annual quilt draw will take place at 3 p.m. Admission is by a donation of a non-perishable food item for the food bank and for more information give Pat a call at 488-3328.

The Legion Branch 441 Kinmount will hold a Halloween Karaoke/Dance on Saturday, Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. featuring the Canadian Gypsy Tribute Band. Musical tribute will be paid to Johnny Cash, June Carter, Shania Twain, Dolly Parton and more. Costumes are optional but there will be prizes for the best ones. The cost is only $5, which includes prizes and a light lunch. Also a note that Tuesday lunches continue through October from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and that the Friday night Bingo now offers a $300 jackpot if won in 55 numbers or a $200 consolation jackpot if more than 55.

Kinmount United Church presents a four-part fall study group "Consciously Becoming" led by Rev. Dr. Carol Kilby, director of the GAIA Centre, at the Church beginning at 9:45 a.m. on the following Sundays Oct. 24, Oct. 31, Nov. 14 and Dec. 19. The themes in order will be Consciously Becoming More Human, Consciously Becoming I Spy With My Evolutionary Eye, Consciously Becoming Evolutionary Elders for Adventurous Churches and Consciously Becoming Christ - The Gift of the Universal Human. The Study Group sessions are an integral part of the Church service and there is no fee to attend.

Crisp fall nights and the wolves are sounding on the hill, until next week...

Our little country store at the Carnarvon Bowl that was opened and operated by Evan is closed until spring. I miss it already!

We were kind of spoiled being able to run over to grab a few things when necessary. But such is life! When talking with Evan this week, he was feeling appreciative and thankful for his customers but I think he has it all wrong . . . we are the ones who are appreciative and thankful to him!

Evan has plans to come back in a few months and re-open with new and wonderful ideas for us.

So Evan, have a good winter and we will see you when you return!

Always great things going on! This Saturday, Oct. 23 the Rockcliffe will be offering you a dinner and show starting at 6 p.m.

The show scheduled is none other than neighbour Mark Christiano with the Ya Babys. This performance will also include their new light show. Can it get any better?

Tickets are $20 for the buffet dinner and show or to just take in the show its only $5. Please call the Rockcliffe 705-286-1460 or e-mail Mark Christiano at thehairlounge9@gmail.com.

Can you believe how fast October is ending? With this in mind please mark your calendars for two upcoming events in November.

Nov. 20 that enterprising Zion United Church is inviting you to a delicious spaghetti dinner. This is all I have for now but will fill you in on the details later. But, please reserve that night, I have never been disappointed with any of their events yet!

On the next day, Nov. 21 the Carnarvon Bowl will be hosting a magical night starting at 5:30 p.m. This will be an evening of magic starring Jason from Js Magic who will wander from table to table and boggle your mind with his skill.

This night will offer you a hot and cold buffet, fun stuff like tarot card readings, holiday nails and just a great opportunity to meet or visit with friends and neighbours.

Tickets are available at Carnarvon Bowl, Highland Leisure and here at Pine Reflections 705-489-1397 or pinereflections@sympatico.ca.

If you have any news to share please drop me a line.

Have a great week!

COWAN, Caroline "Aunt Kee"

September 29th, 1914 – October 8th, 2010.

In her 97th year, Aunt Kee as she was known to much of her very extensive family, was the glue that maintained connection to the many, many far flung children of Cowan/ Cowen ancestry.

Born and raised on a Carnarvon farm, she is predeceased by brothers Royce, George, Harry, Teddy, Robert, Eric & Lloyd, and sisters Muriel, Ruby & Ruth.

She is survived by her dear sister Phyllis (Sue). Aunt Kee was charged at age 14 to care for and raise her younger siblings when her mother passed in childbirth. She was very much a mother to her youngest sister Sue and two younger brothers Lloyd and Eric.

Moving to Toronto to work during the war, she stayed in the city where she worked for Philips until her retirement. Practical and independent, she endured the jokes that came with being amongst the first owners of the VW bug. A lifelong fan, her last bug was squashed by a telephone pole. Independent until the end, she lived alone right until she was admitted to hospital days after her 96th birthday. She cherished coming back to Carnarvon and spending time at her cottage on Boshkung, staying there alone well into her 90's. Love is the touching of souls. Aunt Kee's love has touched many, many, many souls. She will be deeply missed. Internment will be held at Zion United Church, Carnarvon (705) 286-1470 on Saturday, October 23, 2010, at 3 p.m. Floral arrangements are welcome, or donations may be made to the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada.

In memoriam

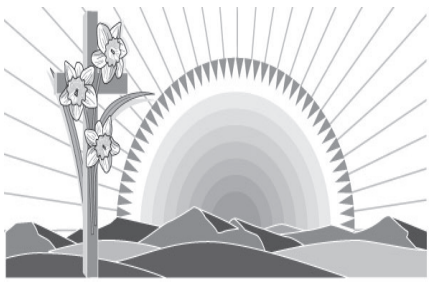

CORBY, Jean - In loving memory of a dear sister Jean Corby, October 14, 2005

FRANCIS, Clara - In loving memory of mother Clara Francis, October 28, 2006.

I lost a mother and sister with hearts of gold,
How much I miss you both cannot be told.
Your life was unselfish for others you lived,
Not to receive but only to give.
Helpful, willing, thoughtful and kind,
What beautiful memories you both left behind

Always loved and never ever forgotten
